- * "English is a window on the world"

At the national level, English must serve as our window to the world, as the language in which nearly all contemporary knowledge is accessible. As the language of science and technology, trade and commerce, political science, economics and international relations, English will be important for industrial and economic development. It will function as the "Language of Development." Our scientists, technologists, engineers, doctors and economists must be able not only to have access to professional literature in English but also to contribute to it, and to communicate with their counterparts in other countries.

The 21st century has witnessed a revolution in the use of mobile phones, emails and internet. It has ushered in a new world where English communication has become a necessity to stand out in the world of competition. In today's society, life becomes very difficult for anyone who is not comfortable conversing in English. In today's world, where we are living in a cutthroat competition, it is very embarrassing not to speak English when it is most needed and it is equally disheartening when failure embraces us, in whatever form, because of that one simple reason.

On the professional front also, the personality of a job seeker is not merely measured by virtue of his IQ. Instead it is measured on the basis of his effective communication. In the modern era or computer age we can say that life is impossible to live without English language. If we want to live life in good way so the English language is needed. English is the only language that anyone can understand. It's only the medium to communicate around the world. Knowledge of English is necessary if one wants to come up in life. It is the major window of the modern world. This is all the more in today's global world, the importance of English cannot be denied and ignored. English is the greatest common language spoken universally.
